Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurA new UK government has been voted into power. In their election campaign they promised to clean up the streets and make Britain safe again for law abiding citizens. Too many previous governments had promised to make a difference but had fallen short and failed to deliver the goods. Drastic action was needed to rectify the deficiency in the fight against serious crime. The time had come to make a difference: A difference that would make criminals think twice before they acted.Holly Ramie was the person who was chosen to put the new governments plans into action and drive them forward to success. She selected twelve people for a new jury that would become the prototype for a new form of justice that she had been given full powers to implement. Justice would be seen to be done: no appeal, no parole, no mercyShe addressed the twelve thus: I am the Judge. Congratulations you are my new jury. Together we will be the
